

What can you do to help?

If you suspect that your child may be missing school or you have concerns, you should contact the school as soon as possible so that you can work with them to resolve any difficulties.

Make sure your child understands that you do not approve of them missing school but be on the alert for any particular reasons for non-attendance and discuss these with the school immediately so that any issues can be quickly resolved.

If your child is ill or absent for any other reason, contact the school on the first day of absence. Supply medical evidence to school.

Follow the school's procedures for notifying absence, and always let the school know of any days that your child is unable to attend.

Make sure your child arrives to school on time, every day. Any issues with arrival, please alert the school to update.

Take an interest in your child's education. Ask them about their day and praise and encourage their achievements at school.

Co-operate with any support, such as any support or intervention offered by the school. We may refer to external agencies for additional support.

The world is run by 'those who attend.'

Attending 4½ days a week = 90% attendance
= 4 weeks missed per year.

Attending 4 days a week = 80% attendance
= more than half a term (over 7 weeks) missed per year.

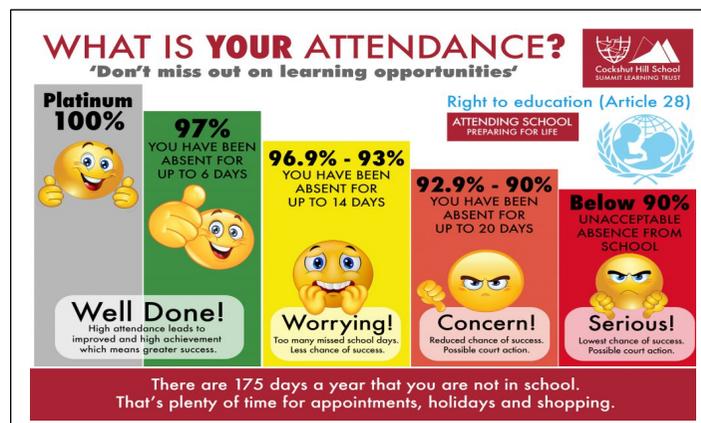

Attending 3½ days each week = 70% attendance
= more than a quarter of the school year missed.

An average attendance of 80% or less across a child's school career adds up to missing a whole 2 years from school

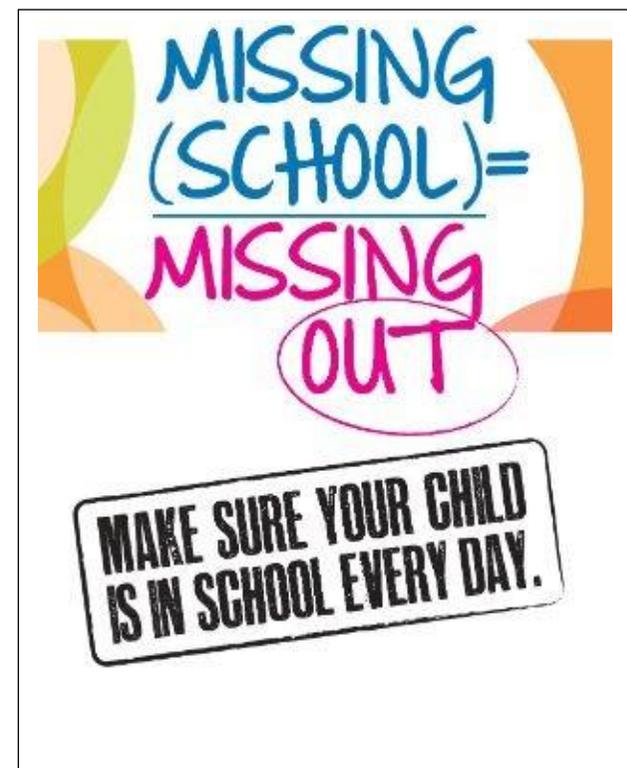

Being late for school reduces learning time.

- If your child is 5 minutes late every day, they will miss three days of learning each year.
- If your child is 15 minutes late every day, they will miss 2 weeks of learning each year.

Make every minute count

School Attendance

Information for Parents and Carers

Why is it important for children not to miss school?

Most parents want their children to get on well in life. Nowadays, it is more important than ever to have a good education behind you if you want opportunities in adult life. Children only get one chance at school, and your child's chances of a successful future may be affected by not attending school. If children do not attend school regularly, they may:

- struggle to keep up with schoolwork. In a typical school day, it is difficult for schools to find the extra time to help a child catch up.
- miss out on the social side of school life. Poor attendance can affect children's ability to make and keep friendships; a vital part of growing up.

Setting good attendance patterns from an early age will also help your child later on, as adults. Employers want to recruit people who are reliable. So, children who have a poor school attendance record may have less chance of getting a good job.

Being on time is also vital. Arriving late at school can be very disruptive for your child, the teacher, and the other children in the class.

Some parents may be finding it hard to get their children to attend school. It is important school is informed.

What might the impact of poor attendance be on your child?

Research has shown that children who are not in school are most vulnerable and are easily drawn into crime. Those children who play truant are more likely to offend than those that do not. Research also shows that:

- less than 40% of pupils in secondary schools with an average of 17 days or more absence get 5 good GCSEs (grades 9-5) compared to more than 90% in schools with an average of less than 8 days absence
- Many parents are surprised how quickly their children accumulate 15 days absence.

What does the law say?

By law, all children of compulsory school age (between 5 and 16) must get a suitable, full-time education. As a parent, you are responsible for making sure this happens, by registering your child at a school.

Once your child is registered at a school you are responsible for making sure he or she attends regularly. This is part of the Home-School Agreement.

If your child fails to attend regularly - even if they miss school without you knowing - the Local Authority (LA) may take legal action against you.

The LA is responsible for making sure that parents fulfil their responsibilities. Parents are responsible for making sure that their registered children regularly attend school and any alternative provision arranged for them.

If you think you might need to take your child out of school, discuss the reasons with the school as soon as possible. Unacceptable reasons for missing school include the common cold, shopping and birthdays. The list is not exhaustive.

What happens if your child does not attend school regularly?

Your child's school is responsible by law for reporting poor attendance to the LA. As a parent, you are committing an offence if you fail to make sure that your child attends school regularly, even if they are missing school without your knowledge. You run the risk of being issued with a penalty notice or being taken to court.

The LA may decide to prosecute a parent. If this happens:

- Parents can be fined up to £2,500 or imprisoned for failing to ensure that their child attends school regularly.
- Magistrates can also impose a Parenting Order, which means that the parent has to attend a counselling and guidance programme, usually a parenting class.

What about authorised absences?

There may be times when your child has to miss school because she or he is ill. This is to be expected and for the odd day off sick you should follow the school's procedures for notifying illness. Children may also have to attend a medical or dental appointment in school time. However, you should try to make routine appointments such as dental check-ups during the school holidays or after school hours. Any absence must be requested as far in advance as possible. Absences can only be authorised by the school.
